
Resurrection of Godzilla

Book version

By Finn Duffy and tehe

A shape shifting mystical creature called Bagan appears in Japan and battles the JSDF, switching between its three forms: an ape, a dragon and a fish. Meanwhile, illegal nuclear dumping in the Pacific Ocean awakens Godzilla, who travels to Japan in search of more nuclear fuel.

When Godzilla arrives, he encounters Bagan, who is unable to defeat Godzilla. Bagan transforms into a totem-like composite of his three forms and fights Godzilla again.

This time however, Godzilla destroys Bagan for good. With Bagan out of the way and the JSDF's advanced "super weapons" destroyed, Godzilla rampages through Japan, causing the government to fear he will attack Tokyo.

A scientist named Dr. Inamura is convinced to use his nuclear fission device, the Reiconium, in order to hopefully kill Godzilla. The Reiconium is used to lure Godzilla to a remote atoll, and is detonated once Godzilla nears it.

Godzilla is consumed in a fiery explosion and falls into the sea, seemingly defeated. However, Godzilla later washes ashore on the west coast of the United States, where he is awakened by a nearby nuclear power plant and lets out a vicious roar.

The end

photos

$ 5:00